THE SAMOAN CONFERENCE.

Germany's Attitude Very Mild-The Socialist Question

[Copyright 1869 by the New York Associated Press.] BERIAN, April 20.—Count Herbert Bis-merck has prepared a statement for the Samoan conference as a basis for discussion. It has been submitted to and approved by Sir Edward Malet, the British ambassador, who was in all probability consulted while it was being drafted. If the American commissioners accept the statement the conference ought not to last more than a week. Germany concedes the Arrangements on the Arkansas City and principal of absolute non-interference in Samon and the natives are to be left free to choose as their ruler either Malieton, Tamasese or Mataafa. No claims for compensation for German subjects are menwork is limited to defining exactly the powers of consuls in regulating trade and work is limited to defining exactly the powers of consuls in regulating trade and shipping, the boundaries of and rights over Pago Pago and other victualling stations, and the formation of a tribunal for the protection and trial of foreigners.

The foreign office here regards that Prince Bismarck's consure of Consul Knappe and his declaration that Germany does not desire to meddle with the internal affairs of Samoa, combined with the proposals to be placed before the Samoan conference, furnish ample proof that Germany carnestly wishes to conciliate the American government. At the same time it is regretted that the American government ignored diplomatic etiquette in sending delegates who are personally prejudiced in the question to be laid before the conference. Nothing of this feeling, however, will be shown toward Messrs. Bates and sewell, who will meet with a cordial greeting from Count Herbert Bismarck on their arrival on Thursday.

Sir Edward Malet, the British ambassador here, has asked Lord Salisbury to send Mr. Scott, the British minister at Berne, as a delegate to Samoan conference. Mr. Scott was formerly secretary of the British smbassy in Berlin, and is thoroughly conversant with Samoan treaties and colonial

The reaction of the nationalists against the government is more marked and the division in the centre party on the question of press repression is becoming wide. One group goes the length of decounting enveragemental interference with nonncing governmental interference with the press or with socialists and will sup-The other urges the necessity of giving the government the means to combat the revolutionary propagada. The government, dreading the result under the existing disruption of the groups, will, it is expected, postpone discussion of the press measure. The progressists are, therefore, propaging to raise the question of the rights of the press through a proposal that the state become liable for the indemnifying of journals that may be suspended or suppressed without sanction of a legal tribunal. The coming period of the session before the Whitsuntide adjournment promises fierce debates and critical party developments.

Herren Liebknecht, Grillenberger, Schumacher and Harm are engaged in a prosecution impending against 108 social-Herren Liebknecht, Grillenberger, Schumacher and Harm are engaged in a prosecution impending against 108 social-Schumacher and Harm are engaged in a prosecution impending against 108 socialists as members of a secret society. These prosecutions do not impede electeral preparations of the socialists, who are now feverishly active throughout the empire. Everywhere new workmen's associations are forming and already numerous candidates have been selected. A striking characteristic of the movement is the spread of the canvass beyond the towns in the country. The short electoral fly sheets written in a clear style denouncing land owners are widely distributed among the peasantry. The police have arrested socialist agents engaged in propaganda at Edinburgh and Pomeroy and seized quantities of American revolution leaflets. The Munich Allgemine Zeitung says that south Germany has never witnessed anything like the present ridiculous scenes of socialism, the aim of which is to influence peasants and smaller land owners with a view to obtaining their suffrages in the conting election.

The two men supposed to be mortally yesterday now seem to be in a fair way to recovery and unless through some unforseen accident there will be no deaths resulting from the battle. The rush from the south into Oklahoma still continues and will do so until after Thursday when it is supposed the lines of march will be somewhat weaker. The line for sixty miles south of Oklahoma is practically like water in a pipe. Wagons empty out at one end and fill in at the other, always full. And so it is from the south all day long the white topped wagons pass through Purcell, which is only across the river from the Meeca of these pligrims. The railroad is taxed to its utmost and the Santa Fe has at last solved the problem of running two traits north on a single track against two runsolved the problem of running two trails north on a single track against two running south. With twenty or more trains a day on this new road not a single accident has occurred, the only mishap being the breaking of the waterworks pesterday morning, which has caused a scarcity of water. The telegraph operators handling all these trains are constantly at work day. all these trains are constantly at work day and night. WASHINGTON, April 20.-Affairs regarding the Oklahoma post offices took a new turn today. Some time ago Dennis Flynn, of Kiowa, Kan., was appointed postmaster at Guthrie, and Robert McCanse, of Cimarron. Kan., was selected for the post office at Lisbon. Then the first assistant office at Lisbon. Then the first assistant postmaster general held up the commission of McCanse. Finally he consented to appoint McCanse postmaster at Guthrie and give Flynn the Lisbon postoffice. At this juncture an Indiana man appeared with a request for a postmastership in Oklahomai His name is J. M. Fulton, and he halls from Huntington. The place had been promised him by Indiana influence, and he demanded the office. Accordingly the commission of McCanse for the Guthrie office was held up until matters could be fixed for the Indiana aspirant. This occurred Wednesday, and today the first assistant postmaster general adjusted matters by transferring McCanse back to Lisbon and appointing the Indiana man postmaster at Guthrie. Flynn, whose name is Dennis, is accordingly left high and dry without office. His bond was filed some days ago, and it is understood he has bought a building for the postoffice and hired his clerk, in readiness for the invasion of Oklahoma next Monday. Congressman Peters feels that his constituents, Flynn and McOanse, have been trifled with in the interest of Indiana, and he is making a vigorous protest; but it is doubtful whether the department will make a change from the present plan. One thing is certain, the postmaster general held up the commission ous protest; but it is doubtful whether the department will make a change from the present plan. One thing is certain, the "monkeying" of the administration over these two appointments has delayed matters to such an extent that Oklahoma will be without a postmaster next Monday. It will be impossible for the new appointments to fully qualify in time to begin business on the date intended.

CRAWFORD BULLOCK & CULAPTIN

A MATTER OF CHOICE

Dana, of the New York Sun, was nexed whether port winedid not bring on the gout. He replied that he thought it did, but that the man who would not prefer to suffer a few twinges of the goul rather than give up his port wine wasn't a man after his heart.

Many things like this are a majest of choice, and we really believe that we are justified in eaving that those who will not, in the face of the testimony which we can effer, try ATHLOPHOROS when they have Near ralgie or Rheumatism, really choose to keep the rhoumatism rather than after their epinions.

Ath-lo-pho-ms, $1.50 per Bettle, at all Dress Stores.
